Central Bank of Kansas City is dedicated to financial empowerment, affordable banking services and community development. Since becoming a Community Development Financial Institution (CDFI) in 1998, we have partnered with organizations that want to create a positive social impact, unlocking the potential of distressed communities through strategic investments and community outreach. We believe in people, purpose and possibility, and our mission centers on revitalizing these communities with better jobs, services, and vibrant communal spaces.

EXPANDING ACCESS TO EARLY EDUCATION THROUGH NEW MARKETS TAX CREDITS (NMTC)

Central Banks' $11 million NMTC allocation allowed Operation Breakthrough to expand its Troost Campus, providing education, healthcare, and parenting programs to underserved Kansas City neighborhoods. It created space for 300 additional K-8 students and introduced MakerCity, where students develop 21st-century skills in STEM, the arts and other academic subjects through hands-on learning. This project furthers the bank's commitment to supporting vital community services and improving educational opportunities for underserved families. Besides education, Central Bank of KC also has a focus on health care, manufacturing and food deserts.
